A Great Victory A Terrible Case of Scrofula

MEDICAL.

Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous cruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all entirely ceased, and the absecsses have all disappeared, except the unsightly sears, which are daily becoming 'smaller by degrees, and beautifully less.' I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilia has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolleited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St., ter the immediate dangers had been put | Phila., Pa. aside, many of these same people gave evidence of a disposition to ignore the mercy of the Father and the work of the leader. This has had a companion picture in our time. There sprang into existence a political party, to meet the demands of the times. Men were to be liberated from bondage, a nobler sentiment was to be built up in the political world, and in fact there was a great mission for goods, ever brought to this City, which the new power. These great leaders guided the fortunes of their out horse. Go to H. O. Witte's and buy followers until the forces had gained such strength as to consider themselves invincible. Though, naturally, this great strength should have prepared them for a grand work, it had practically a serious back-set in the fact that the forces became too strong. The great strengthbred discontent, and discord. The Israelites thought they knew more about the kind of God to worship than Moses didso some of the forces that had been led through much tribulation to victory, conceived the idea that they knew more than the leaders. Even those who knew nothing of the trials and dangers through which the pioneers of the party were compelled to pass, demanded the right to step to the front and assume control of affairs. Age and experience, a glorious record, the prestige of victories won, had no bearing or weight; the old fellows must go. Not only did the young men attempt, like those in Moses' camp, to ignore their leaders, but to supplant them, drive them out. "Why," said one, "I have belonged to this party for four years." Another for "six years." And so on, This should of course give them abundant experience in the management of public affairs. Those they were crying down had been in the same line for thirty yearsmany even longer than that. And these latter received their inspiration from a sense of righteousness and duty-the former from a hope of reward for services never performed. The youth boldly set up a graven image-of course it was of brass-and strove to compel all the old
